Samantha Sanchez was diagnosed September 23, 2008 with Leukemia. Samantha goes through extensive chemotherapy treatments once a week, as well as spinal taps. She is a very strong and positive young lady, and in her free time, Samantha enjoys hanging out with friends, listening to music, swimming, and bike riding. In September 09 she will have a year and a half left of treatments in hopes of leading to remission.

Alyssa is 11 1/2 yrs old and was born with a syndrome called Chromosome 1P36 Deletion and is mentally and physically disabled. Although Alyssa can't speak or walk she enjoys when her brother Matthew spends time with her and loves when her mom reads to her. Last December Alyssa had spinal fusion surgery to prevent her scoliosis from getting worse. It's sometimes difficult to know why Alyssa is crying in pain since she doesn't speak, but we try to the best as we know how to relieve her from it until she's comfortable. Alyssa is our little survivor because she has endured physical pain that I wouldn't be able to handle.
